NUMBER 16.

KENTUCKY CARNIVAL!

Another Wild Day, but Void of Results!

A Great Deal of War Talk, But No Senator Elected.

A Quorum Not Voting, the Assembly Again Adjourned.

No PROSPECT OF AN ELECTION.

Frankfort, Ky., March 13.—11:30—Sheriff Armstrong received instructions from Governor Bradley to clear the senate cloak room, in which were Blackburn and his friends, including Jack Chinn. As soon as the senate majority heard this, the Blackburn leaders drew up a resolution of rebuke to the governor. It caused the wildest confusion.

Petrie, republican, asked that a committee be appointed to confer with the governor and see if such an order had been issued.

Bronston bitterly scored the governor. Saller, democrat, said it was the duty of the senate, out of respect to the governor, to send a committee to find out if he issued such an order.

The sheriff here said he received the orders mentioned from the governor. Bronston said:

"I should denounce this act of the governor, if it were with the last drop of my blood. It is an outrageous, treacherous, shameful act," he screamed, amidst the sounding of the gavel and the suppressed murmur of voices. "Let the governor leave us alone. Pass the resolutions and condemn the man who is governor by accident. I denounce his action and am ready, as a Kentuckian and as a man, to be responsible for my action."

Senator Debow denounced the resolution of Governor Bradley as false and untrue. "I will say it to his face," said he, glaring at Bronston.

Bronston jumped up, and commenced to unbutton his vest, but before he could, the presiding officer succeeded by sounding the gavel in restoring order.

Frankfort, Ky., March 13.—Governor Bradley denies having given the sheriff any such orders as stated. Senator Bronston has begged the governor's pardon.

Saller moved to refer the motion offered by Bronston to the committee on elections, and this was done.

In the joint assembly the roll called 128 members present, necessary a choice 65.

The ballot resulted: Blackburn 50, article 13, Buckner 1. The republicans again refused to vote, and there was no result.

The assembly then adjourned.
